Course overview

If you're passionate about the benefits of sport and keen to inspire young adults, Deakin's Bachelor of Health and Physical Education equips you with the skills to get the next generation moving.

In this course, you'll develop the skills, knowledge and understanding to become a secondary school health and physical education teacher; and discover how to create safe, inclusive and engaging learning environments that help students engage with their bodies and their physical wellbeing.

Explore areas including applied sports science, biomechanics, motor learning and development, exercise physiology, health and human development, nutrition and education. You will also discover the science and art of movement education, familiarise yourself with performance skills in mediums like dance and gymnastics and gain an understanding of basic anatomical and physiological language and terminology.

In addition, you can choose a third teaching specialisation to gain a competitive advantage for employment, including:

- biology
- chemistry
- dance (Burwood Campus only)
- English
- history
- home economics (Burwood Campus only)
- mathematics
- theatre (Burwood Campus only).

Professional experience

At Deakin, we have a strong focus on professional experience to develop your professional readiness. That's why we ensure you undertake professional work placements every year you study. Working with more than 1400 schools across Australia, we'll arrange a total of 80 days of placements where you'll learn from experienced teachers; and facilitate ongoing conversation between yourself and Deakin staff, to ensure you have the best opportunity to develop as a teacher. Your practical learning will continue on campus as you develop your skills in specialised teaching spaces that simulate your future work environment.

Professional recognition

Deakin's Bachelor of Health and Physical Education is accredited by the Victorian Institute of Teaching (VIT), meaning you'll graduate as a qualified educator. Students are eligible to apply for registration with VIT upon successful completion. Check the requirements relating to this process at vit.vic.edu.au

The Deakin difference
