

BRING YOUR OWN DEVICE (BYOD) EXAM

Please note the important difference between your exam in MLP323 Constitutional Law and/or MLP405 Equity and Trusts and your other exams:

If you are allocated to sit your exam at any venue with the code GEVD, GWPV, BURV, BUVD, or WFGV in your End of Unit Assessment Timetable under “Current Location”, your exam will be Bring Your Own Device (BYOD). You are therefore required to bring your own laptop to the exam and use it in the exam.

Your laptop must meet the following minimum requirements:

- You must ensure that your laptop can connect to Eduroam. Please check this is the case by testing it before the exam period commences.
- Windows 10 or later, macOS 13 Ventura or above must be installed in your laptop. In previous BYOD exams, students with outdated versions of these operating systems experienced difficulties completing their exam.
- Your laptop must be able to run an updated browser (Microsoft Edge, Google Chrome, Mozilla Firefox or Safari) in its latest version. Please ensure you can access your unit site from one of these listed browsers on your device before the exam period commences.
- Your laptop must be installed with Microsoft 365, and it must be accessible.

Please also note the following:

- You will need to ensure that your device is fully charged before the exam, but also bring a charging cable or portable charger that is compatible with your device to the exam, as these will not be supplied by Deakin.
- You are permitted to bring an external mouse (USB connected or Bluetooth) to the exam.
- Remember that you still need to prepare and store your digital reference materials in your CloudDeakin locker prior to the exam. These should not be saved as files on your computer.

Equipment that is not permitted in the exam:

- Mobile devices (Smartphones/tablets/iPads) are not supported by the university for use in exams and are not permitted in the exam.
- External monitors and USB devices are also not permitted in the exam.

What to do if You Do Not Have a Suitable Device:

If you do not have a suitable device, you must complete the BYOD Alternative Arrangement Registration Form to request alternative arrangements. Please complete your registration no later than Wednesday 15 January 2024 so that appropriate arrangements can be made. If you have any questions regarding a BYOD exam, please contact Student Results and Assessment Services via assess-on@deakin.edu.au.
